

Outreach event with refugees at the park.

Yes, LORD

I am very grateful for your prayers for our evangelism conference last week! It was a wonderful time of teaching as we focused on what the gospel is and how to proclaim it. This session included small group times where we could discuss various questions with other participants and hear more of their hearts and stories. Those conversations were very powerful! Thank you for praying also for the outreach events on Saturday and Sunday. Many hearts were touched and one refugee couple prayed to receive Christ at our event on Sunday. Other families said they were interested in visiting our church - praise be to God! Please continue to pray for the Lord's work in all of our hearts and that He would raise up disciples who make disciples.

Last week, I received a couple pieces of news that were hard to hear. The news has pushed me to the Lord in prayer as I seek His face and desire to praise His holy name in the midst of the hard. I have been meditating on Isaiah 26:8, "Yes, LORD, walking in the way of your laws, we wait for you; your name and renown are the desire of our hearts." I was convicted because I realized that in response to the news, my attitude said, "No, LORD." When things don't go as I expect or hope or think is best, is my immediate and continual response, "No, LORD"? Or am I willing to humbly say, "Yes, LORD" even when I don't understand because I know your character? You are good, you are sovereign, you are loving and you are able to bring good out of the hard. I am thankful that His kindness leads us to repentance (Romans 2:4).

PRAISE AND PRAYER ITEMS:

- * Praise God for working during the evangelism training and the outreach events. Praise Him for providing the stamina needed and support to share the work of translation. Please continue to pray that we will put the things we learn into practice and that many who are currently living in darkness will be brought into His marvelous light.
- * Praise God that the English curriculum that I ordered online arrived smoothly! Please pray for wisdom as we organize the classes for Tharsis and hope to start on Tuesday, March 21.
- * Pray for good health for my family members and for the Lord to be glorified in and through our lives.
- * Pray for a women's event that I plan to host on Saturday evening with ladies from the church and my Saharawi friends. Please pray for good connections and for the Lord to be glorified.
